She will have your audience laughing and weeping in the same breath — and send them home lighter than they came in.

Kamille Lynn Bauer fought and laughed alongside her late husband — Clint the Cancer Warrior — through his illness, then raised their three children through the grief that followed. She coined the phrase "go through your trial with a smile," and she means it.

Across 110+ episodes of Put On Your Big Girl Pants and 800,000+ views on YouTube, she has talked with a global audience about grief, loss, faith, and how people actually move forward — not in a straight line, and not on anyone else's schedule.

She owns Spavia Day Spa Sandy, co-hosts the South Valley Chamber's Better Together podcast, and speaks with humor and startling honesty about what most rooms are afraid to say out loud.

SIGNATURE TALKS

How to Have Hope When Life Is Hard

Kamille's story as the spine — widowhood, three grieving children, a life and a business rebuilt twice — with enough humor that the hard parts land without flattening the room.

BEST FOR Women's conferences · Faith & church events · Associations · Chamber gatherings

Grief Doesn't Clock Out

Three days of bereavement leave, and a life that takes three years. What a grieving employee needs, and how a team holds someone without walking on eggshells.

BEST FOR HR & workplace wellness · Leadership retreats · Healthcare systems · EAP providers

How to Be the Friend Who Shows Up

Stop saying "let me know if you need anything." She never will. What to say, what to do, and what to stop doing for someone in their worst season.

BEST FOR Hospice & palliative care · Cancer support orgs · Caregiver & nursing groups

YOUR AUDIENCE LEAVES WITH

- Language for the thing they haven't been able to say out loud
- Habits that work on an ordinary bad day, not just a catastrophe
- Permission to stop performing "fine"
- A way to show up for the person next to them who is struggling
- The belief that forward motion is still available to them
